About Learning 4 All

Learning 4 All is a new organisation formed by Down Syndrome South Australia in 2014.

We provide a much needed service in educating and improving the skills of the general community and thereby improving the outcomes of children, adolescents and adults with disabilities.

The staff at Learning 4 All have been employed from the education sector and therefore have extensive experience in areas such as disability and special learning needs, learning and teaching, inclusive education, adult learning and support provision.

Learning 4 All

Learning 4 All provides professional learning workshops and information sessions for staff working in child care centres, preschools, kindergartens, schools (mainstream, special units, classes and special schools) and the broader community.

We specialise in education, health and disability professional consultancy and provide this in a variety of ways to give the opportunity for participants to be reflective of their learning. We are innovative and responsive to the needs of people working with children, adolescents and adults with special learning needs.

The professional learning programs are intended to build the capacity of people working in education and community settings and are designed with the principles of adult learning in mind.

Our Philosophy

Learning 4 All is based on the fundamental beliefs that everyone has a right to be actively included and participate in all aspects of education, employment and community life.

Learning 4 All believes that participants should have the opportunity to:

- Be challenged about genuine diversity, inclusive practice and differentiation;
- Have opportunities to collaborate;
- Be provided with information that is innovative, current, relevant and provokes critical discussion;
- Discuss new ideas, explore evidence based strategies and identify changes to practice; and
- Reflect on and engage in models of support.
